

What you say on the radio: WOULD THIS BE O.K.? Why, or why not?

1. Former Mayor Heribert Poller is a suspect in a corruption scandal. Possible charges of bribery and personal enrichment are being investigated, as a representative of the district attorney's office said at a press conference on Friday in Hammelburg. There may have been secret agreements made in connection with the re-zoning of a development area during Poller's term of office. The city had acquired former agricultural surfaces at an unusually high price and had re-sold them as business/residential properties for development. The attention of the district attorney was called to the case by the tax office: the farmer who sold the fields had only included part of his profit in his tax statement, claiming to have transferred the rest of the purchase sum to a city account.
2. "The fact that the 'Dead Pants' are such a popular group gives us a real advantage. This gives me the possibility to be really direct about some political questions. Isn't that a good result of all that noise!" Singer Campino said this in an interview.
3. According to the police report, there was a fatal accident at the suburban crossing in Hammelburg. The victim was a 35-year-old woman, two additional persons were severely injured. They were driving toward Hammelburg on the B66 Saturday evening when another car entering the intersection from the right cut off their right of way. The 26-year-old driver of that car, a bricklayer's apprentice from Leibelsbach, was not injured. He later told the police that he had overlooked the traffic lights because he was listening to the soccer results on the radio. Now that's a dumb defensive goal!
4. After a meal at McDonalds you may feel rather nauseous, particularly when you think of where they get their meat. A student from Rotstadt supposedly was admitted to the hospital with food poisoning after having eaten a BigMac.
5. Amazing what you can find in a garbage can! We checked the recycling paper before the show. Our best find was a note that said, "Willy, I loved you very much, and the time we spent at Hay Mountain was great, but now it's over, and for good! I can't handle your alcohol problem. Gaby"
6. Have you heard? The Turks want to buy the old movie house and convert it into a mosque. Imaging them grovelling in there on their knees and yelling "allah". We'll have to wait and see who throws the first stink bomb...
7. Thus far our concert tips for the coming week. Good music makes for good moods. By the way, there are other ways to improve you mood, as well: I felt much better during my DJ-show today after having smoked down a funny little cigarette...
8. Have you seen Sybille's new glasses? Now she looks even uglier than before!
