SHORT ABSTRACT

"How do you do that?" is the most common question I am asked by fellow teachers when we talk about virtual exchange. My answer is always the same: "The key is to help young learners develop the confidence and language skills they need."

This webinar presents realistic strategies on how to support young learners' language skills to get the most out of the live session. It combines practical advice on planning, from low-pressure asynchronous tasks to fully interactive virtual sessions, with honest reflections on the messy realities. It provides examples of language scaffolding, backup plans and technical tips to support smooth interaction with young learners.

Join in and turn uncertainty into confident, meaningful virtual conversations!
